

Case Study: KMR Building Solutions

Stuart and Kathy Baines, Lapworth

The expanding house (and family)...

“The KMR team were in our house for the best part of six months and they were great to have around,” says Kathy. While this sounds like a long time, this was a complicated project involving a two-storey extension and much else, which started and finished on time. “This turned out to be a particularly eventful time for the family as our second child was born during the whole building process. Matt and his team worked around the event brilliantly, plus they ensured everything was safe at all times for our 5 year old daughter. In fact, they turned the whole thing into a fun activity, carefully showing her what was going on”.

Understanding that working around family life is as important as, say, the choice of tiles, is just one aspect that makes KMR a cut above the average building company. “Matt worked closely with our architect and made a number of suggestions and changes that improved the layout and the whole build process. He also kept a cool head, even when confronted with the unexpected, and that ensured we all had great confidence in everything throughout the project”, says Kathy. The whole project involved extending the kitchen at the back of the house; adding a bedroom and en-suite bathroom above that, moving the existing bathroom; and converting the garage into a playroom.

“We’re really pleased with the final result,” says Kathy. “It’s definitely living up to expectations, and all the details and the quality of finish are excellent. We’ve already recommended KMR to our friends and have no hesitation in recommending them to anyone”.
